Volunteering to Learn: Enhancing learning in the student volunteering experience in Australian universities

This research project, funded by Australian Government’s Office of Learning and Teaching, is a collaboration of the four Western Australian public universities (Murdoch University, Edith Cowan University, Curtin University and University of Western Australia) and invited partner Macquarie University along with Volunteering Australia and Volunteering Western Australia.

The research focuses on identifying various forms of volunteering taking place in Australian universities and the learning associated with these volunteering activities. Several draft good practice guides have been developed from the project data. This workshop will present initial project findings then workshop participants will review the draft good practice guides to enhance their fine tuning. Student volunteers, university representatives, program managers, and host organisation representatives’ feedback will be appreciated.
